DEATH ENDS CAREER OF JUDGE GEORGE ADDAMS OF CLEVELAND

Funeral Service Will Be Held Monday Afternoon in Cleveland

Funeral service for Judge George S. Addams, 64, prominent Cleveland jurist and former Salem resident, will be held at the Unitarian church, East Eighty-Second and Euclid sts., Cleveland, at 3:30 p. m. Monday.

Judge Addams, in failing health for some time, died in Atlantic City, N. J., at 6:30 p. m. Thursday. He had been in Atlantic City during a leave of absence obtained from probate court duties because of his ill health.

His wife was with the judge when he died. The body reached Cleveland today accompanied by Mrs. Addams and one of their two sons, Municipal Judge Stanton Addams. Burial will be in Lakeview cemetery, Cleveland.

He was re-elected for a six-year term to the latter position last November.

Judge Addams was born in Conotton, Harrison county, on Feb.

Judge George S. Addams

ruary 23, 1889, the only son of George W. and Caroline Stanton Addams and a few years later, following the death of his father, came to Salem with his mother, a native of this city. He and his mother resided in the old Stanton home at the intersection of North Broadway and East Second st.

He attended public schools and in 1887 graduated from Salem High School. While he left this city after graduation to launch his long career as lawyer and judge, he always held dear his associations with Salem friends, continually visiting this city for talks with friends of his high school days.

Judge Addams attended the annual banquet of the Salem High School Alumni association last June at the Masonic temple then visited at the home of City Auditor and Mrs. Karl L. Webster, East State st. He was a first cousin of Mrs. Webster.

After obtaining his diploma at Salem High school, Mr. Addams enrolled as a law student at Oberlin college where, active in varied extra-curricular affairs, he also starred as a varsity basketball player. He graduated from Oberlin in 1890 then enrolled in law school at Cincinnati. He worked his way through the Cincinnati school and graduated with honors in 1892.

Intimate With Johnson
He began the practice of law in Cleveland the same year, and quickly was recognized as one of the city's most promising young lawyers. He became intimate with the famed political leader, Tom L. Johnson, and in 1901 entered the race for Cuyahoga county prosecutor but was defeated.

Recognition of his legal talents came, however, when Johnson, elected mayor the same year, appointed him assistant city solicitor under the now-famous Newton D. Baker.

A few years later, social and civic leaders of Cleveland undertook the appointment of a judge to preside over the newly created juvenile court which was combined with the insolvency court of the county. Mayor Johnson was appealed to and without hesitation he selected Addams, a tall young man who had established an enviable reputation for himself in duties as assistant solicitor.

The juvenile court was not popular with many Cleveland residents who considered it a product of an experimental, twentieth century legislature. Under Judge Addams' leadership, however, the court became a prominent institution, one of the principal factors in the city's general movement to stamp out crime where it has its origin—in the city's youth.

Judge Addams, developing new methods for the handling of children which were adopted almost universally, achieved national distinction. Practically every phase of social error that reflected on Cleveland's children was brought into his court for adjustment and, a few years later, through Judge Addams' initiative, a juvenile detention home was constructed to replace the former antiquated structure.

DEFEAT LOOMS FOR INFLATION, LEADERS' VIEW

Issue Definitely Before Senate for Determination Today

WHEELER, LONG IN SILVER PROPOSAL

Senate Drives Ahead With Farm Bill Price Lifting Section

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The currency inflation issue was definitely before the senate for determination today, with Democratic leaders predicting defeat of the expansion proposals when the votes are taken, probably late this afternoon.

Topping off increasing congressional talk of inflation as the needed step to start a real march toward business recovery, Senators Long (D-La.) and Wheeler (D-Mont.) moved to add silver to the currency by amending the Roosevelt farm relief program.

Amendment Votes Due
The senate was driving ahead with the price-lifting section of the farm bill today and votes on the Long and Wheeler amendments were due before that section is disposed of.

Indications were that any inflationary scheme that President Roosevelt might approve would be towards credit inflation rather than currency.

Inflation was recommended to the senate by its agriculture committee in reporting the Roosevelt farm program. The committee argued that currency expansion was the only hope for "substantial and permanent relief for agriculture."

Mr. Roosevelt himself is moving to counteract deflation by creating more jobs and holding up wage levels. His aides are rounding into shape a huge public works program involving several billions. Federal wage boards may be set up to stop severe wage slashes.

Rail Program Looms

Next week Mr. Roosevelt will recommend to congress legislation providing for the appointment of a federal coordinator to assist the railroads in working out economies, and establishing themselves on a firmer footing. A more permanent railroad aid program may be advanced at the regular session of congress next January.

The house was in recess today, but leaders predicted that on Monday it would pass a resolution giving the President authority to declare arms embargoes.

Completion of hearings today on the Roosevelt Tennessee river valley development plan was hoped for as the house military committee called in advocates of government operation of Muscle Shoals. Representatives of power and fertilizer companies have been appearing in opposition.

Applicants must file applications with county relief committees who will confer on them with Hughes. E. M. Lowry of Salem is secretary of the Columbiana county relief unit, headed by John M. Kerr of Yellow Creek township.

DEFENSE SEEKS TO PROVE CLAIM OF CLOSE RANGE

Prosecution Agrees To Proposal To Fire Gun Again

EXPERTS CALLED BY CANFIELD MAN

Combat State Testimony Weapon Was Fired From Distance

YOUNGSTOWN, April 15.—Defense counsel in the first degree murder case against Cyrus H. Neff of Canfield for shooting his wife last October may demand that the fatal gun be tested in the presence of disinterested witnesses when Neff's trial is resumed here Monday.

Attorney Clyde W. Osborne, chief of defense counsel, made the demand yesterday but did not press the court for an answer. The prosecution agreed that the gun may be fired again with a state representative present, but the defense made no reply at the time. Later Osborne said he may press his demand Monday.

Differ On Effect

Defense attorneys contended that a shotgun of the type used by Neff, fired at a distance of a foot, would produce the same effect as was found in Mrs. Neff's skull at a post mortem. The state, on the other hand, has contended that the gun must have been fired at a distance of several feet.

Neff said after the shooting that the gun was discharged accidentally within a foot of his wife's head as she lay asleep on a couch.

To bear out the contention that the gun was fired from only a short distance and that Mrs. Neff's arm and the pillow on which she rested her head show powder marks, the defense has introduced a number of experts, chief among whom have been Dr. Andrew Wallhauser, Pittsburgh pathologist; James Hayes, ballistic expert; Charles Cowles, chief of the Cleveland ballistic bureau, and Dr. L. J. Goldblatt, local physician.

Yesterday's testimony was chiefly technical, with Dr. Goldblatt and Hayes following Dr. Wallhauser to the stand.

Daughters Aid Father

As the many defense witnesses testified, two of the most interested spectators in the room are Neff's daughters, Mrs. Marjorie Whittle and Mrs. Mary Reebel. They sit close to every word of the testimony and watching the effect on the jury. Almost 500 other persons crowded the courtroom.

HINDSIGHT JUDGMENT

Investigation of the disaster which destroyed the airship Akron has brought out one fact above all others. The accident was avoidable. Unfortunately, evidence of this fact seems to prove inefficient handling. It cannot be emphasized too strongly, however, that there is no intention to place blame on the unfortunate commander or the ship or any member of the crew.

Hindsight judgment usually is and should be infallible. Lieutenant Commander Wiley, who has testified that he would have chartered a course different from that taken by Commander McCord, admits that it was a tossup between two guesses at the time. The weather expert, who testified that any course other than that taken by the ship would have been safe, realizes that Commander McCord did not and could not have known that under the circumstances.

Captain Anton Heinen, "the man who taught the navy how to fly airships," has pointed out that the Akron could have been saved by either one of two methods, in his judgment. By discharging ballast and rising it could have ridden out of the storm. Safety would have been assured also, by riding the storm winds at low altitudes.

These things are apparent now, but the trained mind of an airship expert is not needed to show that in the stress of the moment there was not sufficient time to calculate them so exactly. Commander McCord did what he believed was necessary to save his ship, his crew and himself. That he may have erred is no discredit to him. Rather, it is evidence that the science of operating rigid airships is still deficient.

It was promised that the investigation of the Akron disaster would not be a whitewash. Apparently, the promise is being kept. At least the impression has been given to the people that facts have been disclosed which should prevent repetitions of avoidable accidents to airships in the future.

TAKE CARE, RUSSIA

The case of six British engineers being tried in a Russian court on charges of sabotage and espionage represents international dynamite. A blunder in handling it can do irreparable damage. Russia, on trial itself in the court of world opinion, must recognize its responsibility.

It is not hard to understand what may be back of its vigorous prosecution. Americans, remembering how excited and enraged they have become on suspicion of sabotage and espionage, should be able to understand what terrific pressure can come from a people in the midst of an experiment with popular ownership and control of agents of production.

They feel that their property has been endangered. In the suspected engineers they see symbols of a capitalistic nation which is not in accord with their social principles. The threatened embargo against their products in Britain is a threat against their personal welfare and the success of their communistic experiment.

It has been revealed in the trial that the engineers will try to prove bad treatment at the hands of the Russian officials who detained them for questioning. That will be another source of bitterness and friction. The British are distrustful of Russian judicial methods anyway. They will seize upon this excuse to believe that their nationals are being maltreated by the Russian government.

Unfortunately, the situation has been allowed to develop to a point where it cannot be escaped without scars of resentment on the memories of both parties. If, as is hinted, Russia calls off the trial in return for Britain's promise not to lay an embargo on Russian goods there would be no occasion for congratulation on the part of either government. Each would have made an involuntary sacrifice and each would come away from the dealing bearing a grudge.

This nation, which wants to think well of Russia, prays that it will be careful. A slip now while the spotlight is turned on Russian justice would be a tragedy to the new government which is trying to win the respect and confidence of other nations.

What Others Say

WINNIE RUTH JUDD.

As long as the state holds to its orthodox conviction that an eye should be taken for an eye, and in a great many states including Arizona, most of the people still believe it is just, we can see nothing gained in prolonging the agony of Winnie Ruth Judd's impending execution.

Mrs. Judd was convicted of a most atrocious murder after a fair trial. The higher courts upheld the verdict. The governor and the pardon board have each reviewed the case and found nothing to warrant setting aside the verdict.

Delay, of course, is meat and drink to the lawyers defending Mrs. Judd. But each new disappointment after leaning on some frail reed of hope has merely contributed to the agony of the doomed woman.

We believe in the English system of a swift trial and a swift disposition of the case.

In Michigan there is no capital punishment. But in no state is justice as swift. In the states where there are capital punishment it seems to be a part of the torture to delay and delay.

The system in these states is all wrong.—Toledo Times

Akron Tragedy Recalls Other Air Disasters

Ill Fortune Has Persistently Followed Lighter-Than-Air Craft. Akron Third American Airship to Meet Disastrous End.

The disaster that befell the U. S. S. Akron with an unexpectedness that stunned the nation, recalls similar tragedies that have spotted the development of lighter-than-air craft over a period of twenty years. The first major disaster occurred as far back as 1913, when the German Zeppelin L-1 was destroyed off Heligoland, with a loss of fifteen lives. The same year the Zeppelin L-1 exploded over Germany, killing twenty-eight of its crew. During the World War the rigid type of airship reached a high stage of development in Germany. But in 1919 came another set-back, when the British dirigible NS-11 was struck by lightning and fell into the North Sea, causing a loss of twelve lives. The next major disaster was that of the ZR-2, a giant dirigible taken from Germany after the war, and remodeled for the United States in England. The ship burst into flames over the Humber River, England, in August, 1921. Forty-four of the crew of forty-nine lost their lives. Sixteen of the victims were Americans. The first big dirigible smash in the United States was that of the Roma, built in Italy. She crashed at Hampton Roads, Va., in February, 1922, with a loss of thirty-four lives. In the following year the French airship Dixmude vanished over the Mediterranean with her crew of fifty. It was in 1925 that the wreck of the Shenandoah horrified the nation. Caught in a gale over Caldwell, O., the ship broke in halves. Fourteen of the crew were killed, and twenty-seven escaped miraculously. The most terrifying crash of all was that of the British R-101, which hurtled into a hillside in France in October, 1930, with fifty-three persons aboard. Only five of the travelers lived to tell the tale of the tragedy.

By O. O. MCINTYRE.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Because this letter is from an extremely worldly gentleman and authentic it seems auspiciously interesting these times: "Perhaps a few wayward agnostics might be interested in knowing why I'm suddenly attending church. It is not necessary to mention the denomination."

"I was not caught up by any religious frenzy or emotionalism. I merely dropped into church one evening because I had no place in particular to go and was a bit blue. I expected to not through the services and did. I left when the organ played an exit tune, and dropped into a speak-easy."

"So far as I recall I do not remember any part of the services. My only impression was that it was about the most restful place I had encountered during the past stormy three years. I have been quite fortunate. As you know you have met me here and there and in Europe as a rather high flyer."

"I have occupied a penthouse and was host to the customary crowd of after theater drink cadgers. Also I have been escort for a number of stage and screen beauties. Indeed, I was once engaged to a movie star. Due to a far-seeing father I have an income, although I was nipped in the market."

"There have not been many mornings in the past ten years I have not awakened in a slight fog. I merely became drunk, but by bedtime I usually had an edge. My constitution stood it better than most. For some time I have been fed up. No men can drink steadily without collecting a lot of shady companions. I was the victim of several shakedowns."

"I noticed that most fair weather friends bored me unless I had several drinks. But the mellow I grew the more I thought they were the best fellows in the world. The next day I would realize popularity was due to my paying the checks. Still I would go back to them. I have looked upon the church as sort of a haven for frustrated nit-wits, seeking something they could not find. I was impressed and awayed by the writings of Robert Ingersoll."

"Anyway, that casual evening visit to church kept knocking around in my mind I wanted to go in again. Several Sunday mornings I got up to attend service, but was diverted by such inconsequential as a headache, reading the morning papers or answering telephone calls. Finally I got around to it. I recall hoping, upon leaving, that I would not be seen by anyone I knew. But I was and by a mutual drinking companion who to my amazement commented: 'You have been some place I've been wanting to go for some time. He seemed to eye me with new respect.'

"In my case there has been no regeneration. I have not given up my nightcap or occasional cocktail."

I still smoke and exchange a Pullman car story. But I've been going to church regularly for five months, meeting people one never sees in the flash crowd with which I hobnobbed. They have a forthright wholesomeness I rather thought had gone out. They stand for things, say what you will, that have made this nation endure. One pastor has even had dinner with me. We played a game of chess and afterward talked until midnight. I might add he did not once mention his calling—something one cannot say for show folk, financiers, artists and writers."

"I do not expect to become religious. My materialism is, I fear, too deeply ingrained. But here is the thing that impresses. It has been gossiped I am attending church. Several have intimated they would like to go with me. Others I knew in night clubs and unsavory places also expressed a curiosity. I am wondering if it is the slight undecorated of a spiritual awakening. Has the misery of the times turned people from the husks?"

"Maybe it will be different if and when prosperity returns. Or perhaps I am just one of those burnt-out boys who, having had my fling, selfishly wants others to settle down too. But my honest conviction is that humanity is drifting toward things more worth while. I believe the world is emerging out of its conglomerate woe to something that is going to be, in the language of the circus posters, bigger and better. And, fellow, it is about time! Drop in on me some evening. We can have a high time rocking ourselves silly and meditating on the blessed promises. After all, I've done everything else and haven't had so much fun."

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, April 16

Sunday's horoscope, while promising for affairs of church and state, with some prospects of favors or recognition from those in places of power and authority, also holds portent of disruption, sudden change or journeys and of strife or inharmonious.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden events, with probable change or journeys and these may prove beneficial and bring progress. A child born on this day may be enterprising, adventurous and ambitious, but may defeat its best endeavors by rash, impulsive and tempestuous conduct.

Notable nativity: Anatole France, poet and author.

For Monday, April 17

Monday's astrological forecast is for a lively state of affairs but not a propitious one, particularly in the realm of the domestic, social or affectional. With wise and restrained behavior in these there is augury for much benefit.

If It's Your Birthday Those whose birthday it is may look for a very lively year, with much of interest in social and business affairs. A child born on this day may be clever, socially inclined, but may find itself in employment difficulties frequently.

Notable nativity: J. P. Morgan, Sr., financier.

ASTORIA, Ore. — A bottle that floated across the Pacific ocean was picked up on the beach here by Miss Ila Heikkila. The bottle contained a message, written in Japanese, saying that it had been dropped into the sea in May, 1931, from a Japanese steamer. The finder was asked to notify the Japanese Bureau of Marine Products, which was seeking data on ocean currents.

Recovery of Moffett's Body

Precaution in Vacation Time

Vacation time is drawing near. During the summer months there is a great migration of citizens from one state to another. The old automobile will be polished, oiled and greased in preparation for vacation trips.

There are many hazards and dangers in automobile travel. I do not refer to physical accidents, but to health hazards and dangers frequently overlooked by vacationists. Today, I want to point out a few of these pitfalls so that you may avoid them.

The drinking of contaminated water is a danger that should be avoided. If you camp by the way-side, or put up in isolated sections, be careful of the water you drink.

Typhoid fever is a frequent occurrence among those who are careless about their drinking water.

Typhoid fever may be avoided by careful supervision of the water supply. It may also be prevented by receiving special typhoid inoculations. These injections are simple and painless. I recommend them to all who plan any extended trip through the country.

Avoid Damp Camping Places Within the past few years there has been an increase in the number of cases of malaria in the United States. Many authorities regard this as due to increased motor travel. They believe that many automobilists camp in unhygienic spots where the "anopheles" mosquito lives.

This particular mosquito carries the parasite that causes malaria. This pest is usually found in marshy lands, stagnant ponds and infected swamps. When you pitch your camp avoid these places. Pick a spot that is high and dry. Mosquito netting should be a part of every camp equipment.

Another common vacation danger is contaminated milk. Merely because you are in the country, does not mean that the milk is pure and safe to drink. If in doubt, remember that it is unsafe to drink milk of inferior quality. Contaminated milk is a source of many serious infectious diseases.

When stopping for food select only clean eating places. Lack of cleanliness, carelessness in the handling of food, lack of ice and screens and the presence of flies should be warnings of danger. These menaces to health should be looked for before ordering food.

Be Sure of Your Food

I can never understand why persons who are accustomed to clean food and clean homes, should eat in filthy eating places. Perhaps it is due to the excitement of the trip that so many travelers are careless in regard to the food they eat and the water they drink.

Many persons carry their own food. For the short trip, this is an excellent idea. In addition to being assured of cleanliness, there is a lot of fun in preparing food along the countryside.

Many foods that are both nutritious and tempting can now be purchased in the form of canned goods. Canned milk, vegetables and fruits are easily carried on these trips.

A trip or other vacation is a success when the general health has been benefited. Health can be encouraged only by the use of clean, pure and wholesome food and water. On your next trip, bear in mind these few dangers and how to avoid them.

2-CENT POSTAGE?

CONFESSIONS

INFLATION

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1933 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CONGRATULATIONS to Postmaster General Farley, who wants to put letter postage back to 2 cents. The government has learned what business learned long ago, there is more money in a big bargain than in any kind of overcharging. At the 3-cent rate thousands of houses, including financial institutions, distribute letters and circulars by special messenger and find that they can do it for even less than 2 cents in many cases.

THE TRIAL of Englishmen, in Moscow, accused of sabotage, bribery and spying, proceeds under conditions difficult for the Englishmen. A young Russian engineer is alleged to have taken a bribe, and then gone to the police with full information. He said to the prosecuting attorney at the trial:

"Comrade prosecutor, I am a Russian engineer. I do not take bribes."

One of the accused Englishmen called the judge "comrade" but was ordered to call him "citizen judge."

The situation, as described by the Associated Press, is painful for the British, who still maintain that confessions of the accused Englishmen were wrung from them by cruelty. To this Russia replies that not one of them made any such charge in court, although the opportunity was theirs.

YESTERDAY the Senate was considering the administration's farm program called by those that do not like it "an inflation program." If interested in "plain English," compare Herbert Spencer's definition of evolution with extracts from the farm bill. You will award the prize for a clear style to Herbert Spencer. He defined evolution thus:

"Evolution is an integration of matter, and a concomitant dissipation of motion, during which the motion passes from an indefinite, incoherent homogeneity to a definite, coherent heterogeneity, and during which the retained motion undergoes a parallel transformation."

THE PLAN to stabilize farmers' prices, quoted in the Congressional Record by Mr. Broadan Wall, runs as follows:

"The price for each month may be conceived as represented by a small black ball, suspended above the line for its date, at the height of the average price for that month, and as indicated by the supply for that month. There would necessarily be only one ball for each month.

"These balls, however, would all be very close to the demand surface, a little above it for those months when the actual price was higher than the price as shown by the correlation formula and a little lower for the month when the actual price was a little below the estimated price. In general, however, it would be seen that the demand surface approximated the position that these prices occupy, as they were thus suspended through space and time."

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 16, 1933.

The Golden Text is: "There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus." (1 Tim. 2:5).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved." (John 3:17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Though demonstrating his control over sin and disease, the great Teacher by no means relieved others from giving the requisite proofs of their own piety. He worked for their guidance, that they might demonstrate this power as he did and understand his divine Principle. Implicit faith in the Teacher and all the emotional love we can bestow on him will never alone make us imitators of him. We must go and do likewise, else we are not improving the great blessings which our Master worked and suffered to bestow upon us. The divinity of the Christ was made manifest in the humanity of Jesus."

HOLY TRINITY ENGLISH

LUTHERAN

East State st., at Woodland ave. Rev. George D. Kelster, pastor.

Easter day—the resurrection of our Lord. Sunday school 9:45 (Mark 16:1-20). Paul Wilms, Supt.

Christian faith rises to a higher level at Easter time than at any other time. We are brought face to face with realities of the life and Gospel of Christ that are beyond the complete explanation and understanding of man. Some of the liberal school of thought have shaken their heads and said that such happenings are impossible. Very true, if you depend only upon the human element. These facts of Christian faith that center about the Easter Festival cannot be accounted for, if the human element is only considered. Jesus was divine as well as human. He was conceived by the Holy Ghost, as well as born of the Virgin Mary. The bodily resurrection of Christ is plainly recorded in Holy Scriptures. It still stands as the keystone of Christian faith.

Morning worship, 11. Sacrament of the Holy communion. Sermon: "The Invitation to Conquest"

The general spirit of the world is that of defeatism. Heads are bowed. Spirits have been humbled. Victory has fled from many people. That pertains only to physical victory. The matter of defeatism in matters of faith and religion is not of much prominence. It is not found where the evangelical doctrines of grace are accepted. The conquering spirit of Easter should belong to every Christian. Christ's resurrection should be that to every devout and faithful believer.

The Luther league meeting is held in conjunction with the union service of young people's organizations at Reilly field, Easter morning at 6:30.

A special preparatory service will be held at the church at 10:45. Missionary society meets Wednesday at 7:30.

Choir association meets Thursday at the church.

The Luther league will entertain the members of the Confirmation class at a coverdish supper at the church Tuesday, April 18, at 7 p. m. Reception of adult members will be at morning service.

The Easter program of the Lutheran Sunday school of Washingtonville, will be given Sunday evening 7:30.

Question of Looks

CLEVELAND, April 15.—The question "will you get him free because he is good looking?" was put to women summoned for jury service in the trial of John Campbell, 19, of Chicago, on a robbery charge. Six qualified after answering satisfactorily.

Assistant Prosecutor Frank D. Celebrezze, who asked the question, had received reports that feminine jurors helped acquit male defendants because they "were too good looking to convict."

He said Campbell is wanted in Medina, O., for hijacking tires.

Judgment Awarded

PORTSMOUTH, O., April 15.—C. A. Brown, conservator for the First National bank here, was awarded a judgment of $100,666 against Miss Leona Labold, daughter of the late Simon Labold, president of the bank for many years.

John Vasco Home Deserted Today As Family Leaves

HASTINGS, N. Y., April 15.—The home of John Vasco, besieged by the curious since the start of a court fight to determine whether his two-year-old daughter Helen should undergo an operation for removal of a growth on her eye, was deserted today.

Neighbors said the family locked up the place and left at 5 a. m. in an automobile.

None of the neighbors knew where they had gone, and none was able to say whether they left in a taxicab or a private automobile of friends. The car drew up to the house, Vasco, his wife and their three children, Mary 11, and the twins, Helen and Anna, emerged, locked the door, entered the automobile and drove away. They took none of their personal effects.

Since the question of whether Helen should undergo an operation went to the appellate division of the supreme court for decision, the Vasco home has been besieged by the curious. Crowds have driven and walked through the muddy street in which the house stands and many have congregated in the yard and even pecked in the windows.

The situation finally became so annoying to the family that Vasco barricaded the home to all visitors for a time. Yesterday, in response to his plea, a police guard was placed about the house and he raised the barricade, announcing he was reconciled to having the operation performed should the appellate division decree it.

He disclosed, however, that his wife still was unable to give her approval.

Physicians have diagnosed Helen's affliction as a tumor on the retina of the left eye, and have said that if it is not removed it would cause death. An operation, the doctors said, might cause blindness.

Judge George Smyth, of the Westchester county children's court, on application of an agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, ordered the operation, but stayed its execution for a ruling from the appellate division, which is expected early next week.

Today's Pattern

COTTONS ARE SMART

AND THIRTY

You'll want to plan a new wardrobe this season.... but you need not be extravagant about it, especially when you "sew your own." The advent of cottons to be worn morning, noon and night, is a great help to limited budgets. They're inexpensive, fresh and neat.... and easy to keep that way! Take this charming model, for example. Select any embroidered batiste, then the rever laces and drop shoulders will perk up beautifully and a ribbon sash will add a bright splash of color. Dimity, lawn, swiss, or organdy would be equally lovely, and inexpensive.

Pattern 2349 may be ordered on sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 requires 2 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric and 1 1/2 yard 2 1/4-inch ribbon. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions include this pattern.

SEND FOR THE ANNE ADAM FASHION BOOK, showing Paris inspired models for every season—both practical and easy and economical to make. Models for the larger figure, junior and kiddie styles; lingerie and accessory patterns are also featured.

New Season Chapeaux Grow Tall

The High Hat, a Distinct Millinery Departure, Was a Natural Adjunct to the New Wide-Shoulder Mode

By MARIE MAROT

IF YOU WANT a complete change of appearance, consult your hair dresser and ask for a style that will be just right for a high hat. Then go out and invest in a hat whose silhouette is decidedly tall. Perhaps you'll get a shock at first, but as you become attuned to the new you, the change will be found to be all to the good.

Today we show hats that, while not too extreme, are certainly new. First is a brimless black rumba braid model which develops into a panache at the top. It is trimmed with a white feather bird. Next is a sailor hat, with its crown squaring up high in back, its brim drooping mysteriously in the center to shadow the eyes. The hat is of white straw with a blue and green plaid top and headband. The scarf matches. Next is a hat that is of the type worn by the first settlers of New England, yet it manages to be as modern as modern can be. It is made of black Milan straw and has a wide band of taffeta ribbon around the high crown, crushed down into the traditional square silver buckle. The straight brim is worn well down over the brows, and it, too, does mysterious things to pretty eyes.

THE HOME KITCHEN

New Recipes for Bananas

Pediatricians constantly advocate plenty of bananas in the diet of children. The banana is extremely nourishing, a complete food, one that happens to be highly tasty as well as nutritious. Mashed with cream it is delicious and children will take it gladly. Indeed all young things seem to like bananas. In the hospital of a zoo I watched an attendant feed a very delicate and highly valuable monkey baby with bits of banana fried in butter, the fish having been ordered by the zoo doctor, after the delicate little Simian had refused all other food, including milk. Of course there are ever so many ways to serve bananas other than those indicated, but such methods are better for the older child.

Banana blancmange is a sweet that is equally relished by children and adults. To make it, mix two ounces of cornstarch with a little milk taken from one quart of milk, boiling the remainder. Add two ounces of confectioners' sugar and blend cornstarch and let simmer gently for five minutes. Let cool, then add the beaten yolks of two eggs, and stir by the side of the flame until the mixture thickens. Put in two bananas, thinly sliced and half a teaspoon of vanilla essence. Pour the mixture into a mold and chill.

Banana Pudding
A dish more suitable for adults is made by cutting bananas in pieces, oiling in flour and frying in butter until a light brown in a frying pan. Drain well and serve with poached eggs. A good luncheon dish. I know that you will make banana pudding a regular dish on your best menu, after you have once tried it. To serve five or six people with this pudding you will require two bananas, four ounces of confectioners' sugar, four ounces of flour, one ounce of butter, quarter of a cup of cream or evaporated milk, and three eggs.

Cream the butter and sugar well together, beat in the yolks of eggs separately, stir in the flour and add the cream or milk, and the bananas, thinly sliced. Whip the whites of eggs to a stiff froth and add them gently to the rest of the ingredients and pour the mixture into one large or several small well-buttered molds. Steam or bake a large pudding from one to one and a quarter hours, or small ones from thirty to thirty-five minutes. Serve with a fruit syrup or sweet sauce.

Appetizers in Original Style
Canapes and hors d'oeuvres are becoming increasingly popular, superseding desserts and sweetmeats. So it behooves the hostess to see to it that these savory tidbits are perfectly done and served. And if her canapes are original and her hors d'oeuvres also novel, she will quickly gain a reputation as a splendid hostess and a good housewife.

Of course, care should be taken that the savory morsels that are served before the meal proper or with liquid refreshment should not be heavy, they must tempt the appetite, not destroy it.

The hors d'oeuvres are of course crisp and salty, so are the canapes, except that they are served on a foundation of bread or biscuit, the bread toasted or sautéed. There are special crackers with rims to hold the filling that are especially nice with certain savory mixtures.

Please the Eye, Too
Arrange the plate holding the foods so that the eye is pleased as well as the palate, go in for color contrasts, but be careful to see to it that each variety is easy to get to. If you don't want to experiment with hors d'oeuvres, stick to those that are usually served in restaurants such as anchovies, stuffed eggs, pickles, chopped with French dressing mixed with French dressing, the dish garnished with radish roses and curls of celery, the latter made by soaking thin strips of celery in ice water. Sliced tongue, ham or lightly seasoned sausage, pearl onions, caviar, sardines, crab or shrimp meat with mayonnaise are also often served.

New Style Canapes

For the canapes there are lots of interesting things. A nice canape is made by cooking three eggs until in halves, lengthwise, and remove the yolks. Blend the yolks with one teaspoon of anchovy paste, half a teaspoon of parsley finely chopped, making into a smooth paste. Refill the egg whites and chill. Cut bread with a three-inch round cutter and toast on one side only. Spread with butter then cut out centers large enough so that the egg half can rest firmly in it. Pour on Russian dressing and garnish with watercress. This will serve six, but of course one-half of egg is reckoned for each helping.

"Lady, Lady!"

Irritated by the persistent efforts of the photographer to snap her in action as she played in the Ladies Parliamentary Golf Association tourney at Ranelagh, Eng., Lady Astor, American-born member of the British Parliament, gave the cameraman more action than he bargained for. However, he managed to click the shutter as the irate lady legislator came for him with upraised golf club—and this is what he got.

Hits 30-Hour Week

COLUMBUS, O., April 15.—The 30-hour work week proposal before congress was criticized as "an economic gold brick" in a bulletin issued by the Ohio chamber of commerce.

Among other things, the bulletin said, the measure would make impossible the performance of seasonal and rush-job work, increase the demand for machinery to replace workmen and require complete readjustment in production methods, wage scales and contracts.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE

by WARWICK DEEPING

SYNOPSIS

Young Dr. John Wolfe arrives at the quaint town of Navestock to become Dr. Montague Threadgold's assistant. Though shabby of dress, the young doctor's bearing commands respect. Dr. Threadgold is very affable but his wife, who judges from outward appearances, considers Wolfe a "raw hawk of a man" and treats him coolly. Sir George Griggs arrives with a dislocated shoulder. He is infuriated over Dr. Threadgold's clumsy treatment and turns to young Wolfe who skillfully sets the shoulder. Later, Dr. Threadgold tells his wife that Wolfe has some ability but is a little forward. Dr. Threadgold attends the prosperous patients and assigns his assistant to the poor section of town. The young physician realizes the pitiable plight of these people in the hands of a bungling doctor. He is shocked at the unsanitary conditions in the alleys and starts an investigation. Dr. Threadgold, ignorant of this, is well satisfied with his assistant, and Mrs. Threadgold now considers him a very passable person. In Threadgold's absence, Wolfe goes to attend a Mrs. Mascall. He is met by the young daughter who is displeased that he and not the old doctor responded. Wolfe's frankness, however, wins her over. After leaving the cheerful Mascall home, Wolfe feels happy. Following three months of research, Wolfe prepares a map of Navestock showing its unsanitary areas. Josiah Crabbe's property is the important exception. Jasper Turrell, the brewer, comes upon Wolfe taking a sample of his pump water for analysis. Turrell is furious and demands that Wolfe turn over the bottle to him. The young physician pours the water at Turrell's feet and leaves him fuming and sputtering.

CHAPTER TWELVE

On Taring Moor the gorse was still in bloom, though the full glory of gold had deserted it for the waving branches of the broom. It was a rare galloping ground for a man whose blood had been over-heated.

John Wolfe came riding back from the direction of Herongate, where he had been called to see a shepherd who was ill. The climb out of that rotten, worm-eaten old town towards the wide spaciousness of the moor had cleared Wolfe's brain and steadied his heart. Only a few hours had passed since Jasper Turrell had tried to bully him in Virgin's Court, and that one incident seemed likely to make of Navestock a battleground or a tilting-yard.

Wolfe had felt a desire to be alone, to thrash things out in his own mind, to climb up above the little dust storms of the moment and gain a broad view of his own horizon. The ride over Taring Moor had given him the calmness of outlook that he needed. Wolfe knew that he had been warned off that morning, and that Jasper Turrell had thrown a stick at him, as he would have thrown a stick at a dog that had shown an inclination to trespass under his garden gate. And Jasper Turrell's attitude was likely to be the attitude of Navestock. The incident of that absurd quarrel had opened Wolfe's eyes. The little people would not only twist their mouths at him and siber maliciously; they would gather like apes and try to pelt him out of the town. Turrell had bellowed a warning. The people who owned Navestock would tolerate no man who attempted to tell them unpleasant truths.

Now Wolfe was a born fighter. One of those men whose chin and fists go up even in the face of a crowd. He had glimpses of what might happen in Navestock, the anger and malice he might arouse, the abuse he would receive, the influence that would be exerted against him. It takes a man of great courage to stamp the faces of his fellows with the seal of hate. Few of us find pleasure in offending those who dwell about us. Our amiability is apt to make us cowards. But Wolfe had that touch of fanaticism that compels a man to utter what he knows to be the truth.

Across the sterner gloom of his thoughts rose the sun-splashed spires of the Moor Farm cypresses. Wolfe saw the red house with its holly hedges spreading along the bridge below him as he descended the moor. An impulse stirred in him, bidding him turn aside towards Moor Farm. More than once since his first visit he had passed across the paddock and up the stone-paved path. These people of the moor did him good when he was lonely. There was a charm about the old house, and Wolfe had seen the orchard in bloom, and the daffodils nodding their heads over the rich green grass. The comely, smiling goodwill of the mother contrasted with the wind-blown hair and sparkling frankness of wild-eyed Jess. These were people who filled the heart when it felt empty, and made a man's sad thoughts grow mischievous and young.

As Wolfe neared the white gate he saw a short, brown-smoked figure come running across the paddock. The figure waved an arm and shouted. It was Bob, the carter's boy, who had bumped in and out of Navestock on the back of the brown pony.

Navestock. That sounds very practical.

Mrs. Mascall's eyes brightened. "How you do think of things! I've been putting Jess through her paces, old Fyson's a kind sort of man. Three dozen of fresh eggs—that's what the tenant of Moor Farm has to give the Lord of the Manor. You all have to whisper. They call it the Whispering Court. "So Jess told me."

"Call the girl, doctor. Oh Jess, child, you're there? Dr. Wolfe's going to Fienmyng's Cross with you. It's a weight off my chest. He'll stay and take tea. And Jess—the eggs?"

Jess had one of her solemn moments.

"I haven't got them yet, mother."

"Good gracious, child, go out and get them."

A meeting for the arrangement of final plans for the campaign will be held at the Memorial building at 7:30 p. m. Monday. Drafting of the schedule, adoption of rules, old and new, and other important matters will be discussed.

West and Taylor, both active in softball affairs for the last three years, will cooperate in arbitration of league activities.

At least 14 and possibly 16 teams will compete in the Class A circuit while the organization of two other

Winter Trades Aid Major Clubs; Teams Show Added Power

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer

Judging from the earliest returns, the Major league ball clubs accomplished a few good strokes of business in their winter dickerings.

The season is only three days old but some of the players who shifted their allegiance in the off-season already have had opportunities to shine for their new clubs.

Look Good In Openers

In the first couple of games Fred Lindstrom, Babe Herman, Al Simmons, Sam West, Carl Reynolds, Jimmy Dykes and a few others who figured in the winter trading, got in some heavy stickwork; Eddie Durham, Earl Whitehill and others displayed excellent pitching form.

The Brooklyn acquisitions, Jake Flowers and Joe Judge, did some snappy fielding along with the Athletics collection of rookies, who did not do much else in their first two games against Washington.

A couple of other recruits came out into the spotlight yesterday. Only three games escaped postponement but they saw Walter Beck, Brooklyn's big recruit from Memphis, pitch brilliantly in his National league debut. Frank Higgins of the Athletics added his name to the home run list on his third day in the big league; Walter Stewart, formerly of the Browns, gave Washington some more good flinging and Johnny Hodapp, who was with the White Sox last year, continue his effective work for the Boston Red Sox.

Beck's feat consisted of holding the heavy hitting Phillies to seven hits and whiffing five of them while the Dodgers hammered out a 7 to 1 victory.

Robert Moses Grove, the Athletics' stellar southpaw, stilled the Senators' bats after two straight victories and gave the rebuilt Mackmen a 5 to 1 triumph. He gave only six hits, and pitched shutout ball up to the last inning.

Confidence, Punch Big Items Favoring Baer In June 8 Mix

By RALPH B. JORDAN

International News Service Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—Max Baer, the California heavyweight, has two things at least in his favor for his coming June 8 fight in New York with Max Schmeling.

They are confidence and a punch.

To offset these the handsome Californian, with a body like an answer to a sculptor's prayer, is a play-boy; not only just full of fun, downright "silly" sometimes, according to Anell Hoffman, his manager.

Never Trains Diligently

Baer's handlers never have been able to get him to train diligently for a bout and have torn their hair during fights when he has clowned and frittered away excellent chances for knockouts.

Maxie doesn't follow the lure of the bright lights particularly, although he has thrown some interesting home parties; his play-time activities aren't vicious; he doesn't seem to be vicious by nature, just a jolly boy, playing around like a high school freshman both before and during a fight.

But he can punch, can take punches, and thinks that all heavy-weights are just made to order for him, putting his losses down to poor eyesight on the part of referees.

Baer was a meat cutter in a butcher shop at Livermore, not far from San Francisco, when he took up ring craft about four years ago. He flashed along the pugilistic path, smiling and posing in the ring and knocking lesser known opponents out—and for keeps.

Never Been Knocked Down

Then he got into the higher bracket and still clowned through his fights, but his punches stung and paralyzed. Also, he's never been knocked off his feet.

Just before he and Hoffman left for the east, Max disposed of his Schmeling bout thus:

"That German's a cinch for me. I'll knock him coo-ko. And I'll do the same to Sharkey. Absolutely."

But Hoffman looks at him quizzically for Hoffman is quite out of patience occasionally with his fighting Adonis, especially on the Hoffman ranch, where Baer has spent the last few months, sending his manager into tirades in an old airplane and shooting Hoffman's choice, imported fobblers.

McKenzie Battles Scarpuzzi Monday

CANTON, April 15.—A home town natural that is attracting more attention than any in recent fight history here is scheduled for the new Shamrock club Monday night. It will pit Tommy McKenzie against Henry Scarpuzzi in the featured portion of a triple windup of eight-rounders.

In other eight-rounders, Tax Takla of Canton will tangle with Mickey DePalma of Malvern in a return engagement at welterweight, and Johnny Poffack of Canton will clash with Andy Mackey of Canton at middleweight. Two four-rounders will complete the card.

Takla and DePalma have duelled three times. Takla outpointed the Malvern Italian twice, but was held to a draw their last time out—at the Shamrock two weeks ago.

HERR MAX ASKS ANOTHER FIGHT WITH SHARKEY

Schmeling Looks Ahead to Titular Bout; Meets Baer on June 8

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 15.—Max Schmeling is looking past his forthcoming match with Max Baer to another meeting with Jack Sharkey for the world's heavyweight championship in September.

The German puncher thinks Sharkey is a virtual certainty to "take" Primo Carnera again and if he does, Schmeling is ready and anxious for another crack at the Boston tar.

"Carnera is in no mental state to wage a great fight," Schmeling said on his arrival here yesterday. "I don't think he has any money and the suit he lost in London recently will not help him either. Worried fighters are not good fighters."

Schmeling, apparently in great condition and tipping the beam at his best fighting weight, 190 pounds, declined to venture any prediction as the outcome of his match with Baer at the Yankee stadium, June 8, under Jack Dempsey's promotional banner. He saw Baer fight Johnny Risko in Cleveland and thought the California "big strong fellow, a good right hand puncher."

Schmeling now is at odds with Madison Square Garden which is promoting the Carnera-Sharkey match June 29 but says he'd have no hesitancy about signing with the garden for a Sharkey match in September.

Before tackling the variations, however, I wish to impress upon the mind of the student of golf the fact that the real fundamentals of all strikes in golf in so far as accuracy in striking is concerned are as follows:

1.—Head. Keep your head steady throughout the swing. This does not mean that your head must not turn a little to the right with the back swing or to the left on the follow through. It simply means that you should not sway your head to the right or left, nor up or down, nor forward toward the ball or back from it. This does not mean that the experts do not sometimes sway their heads a little and generally manage to get away with it, although they may be doing their best to keep their head steady.

I merely state that the steadier you keep your head the more likely you will be to hit your ball true and do so with a fair degree of regularity. The reason for keeping your head steady is that it is the governing center of the swing. When you swing a golf club, the club head travels in an arc around your head and if you keep it steady the club head should describe a true arc in the backswing and retrace the same arc in the down swing automatically returning the club head to precisely the same point it started from. That is, provided, other things are correctly carried out.

Correct body poise throughout the pivotal action of the body makes it possible for you to keep your head steady throughout the swing.

Next I will write about Fundamental Two.

Tourneys Planned At Chicago Fair

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 15.—Approximately 40 national championship tournaments and meets, already have been scheduled on the Chicago World's Fair sports program, it was revealed today.

All branches of sport, from a championship marble tournament to big time college football games, have been booked.

Is one of the fastest men in the league, despite his 190 pounds. . . . Constantly seeks to improve his fielding and batting. . . . He gets all the hitting practice possible, bats with both the regulars and "Yanigans" where a female party is concerned. . . . Is a good "kibitzer" though when a card game is in session. . . . Has a younger brother with his baseball ambitions and a chance to make good. . . . Joe loves baseball and is always ready to bear down when spring training starts. . . . If you're ever in trouble in Cleveland's south side and need a way out, just mention the name Vosmik. The players call him "Tiger Joe" because he is just the opposite.

Joe Vosmik, only local boy with the Indians, will get a big hand when the season is pried open April 19 with the Tigers.

Two Class B records established by "Boots" Hawkins, star Columbian High athlete of 12 years ago, have withstood the attack of all performers since 1922. Hawkins' records in the pole vault and broad jump have not been surpassed since he established them at Columbus that season.

That Ed Beck is among Newberry college's most promising athletes and that August Corso is now enrolled at Westminster college. That the sporting world will probably hear plenty about this pair before long.

Despite the fact that plans for the Salem-East Liverpool spring football game have fallen through, the Ceramic City will still play a warm-weather, night contest, possibly against New Brighton. The Potters figure on cleaning up big, financially, from the game, but are disappointed that they will not be able to oppose Salem.

Bruce Arnold holds the High record in the 100, erasing the old-time record held by Oscar Gray since 1912. Arnold's mark is 10.1 seconds.

That the oldest record in Salem High track and field is Charles Coffee's mark of 33.8 seconds in the 440, created in 1926.

Walter Miller To Pitch For Chicago

Expert Opinion

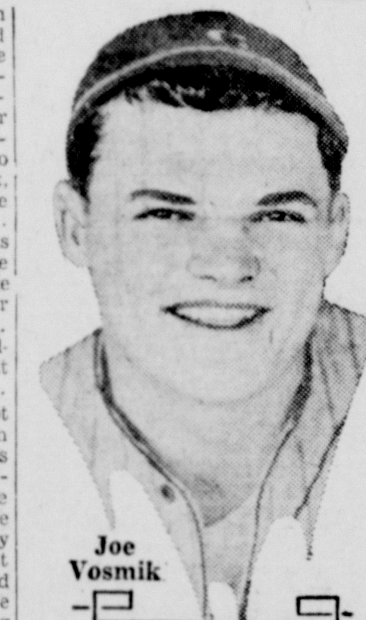

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, who is a connoisseur on the subject of boxing gloves, is pictured as he examined the mittens of Max Baer, California heavyweight, who is training at New York for his bout with Max Schmeling in June. Baer is said to resemble Dempsey, not only physically, but in ring style.

WILLAMAN WILL OPEN GRIDIRON CLINIC APR. 21

Prominent Coaches Will Take Part In Salem Sam's School

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, April 15.—A football clinic, conducted by leading high coaches of Ohio, was announced today by S. S. Willaman, director of football at Ohio State university, for April 21 and 22, at the university.

Many prominent coaches from every part of the state will assist in the discussions. Willaman hopes the clinic, the first of its kind in the state, may become an annual affair.

Coaches to Participate

Elmo Lingrel, Middletown High school, will lead a round table conference on "offensive line play" and Ralph Webster, Columbus East High school, will handle the defensive angle of that department. James W. Aiken, Canton McKinley High school, will discuss the "double wing back offense" and L. W. McAllister, Toledo Waite High school, will hold forth on the single wing back formation.

The forward pass defense will be outlined by E. M. McCaskey, Lorain High school, and the box formation offense, by M. M. Hagely, Columbus North High school.

The initial session will be held in the men's gymnasium at Ohio State university and following the open forum on play, H. R. Townsend, Ohio High school athletic commissioner, will address the coaches.

Arrange Banquet

The student senate and the inter fraternity council of the university are cooperating with Willaman and his aides in arranging for the dinner Friday night. L. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State, will speak at the dinner and show motion films of Ohio State football games in 1932 will be shown.

Dr. W. E. Duffee, Ohio State's team physician, will open the Saturday session with a discussion on physical examinations. Tucker Smith, Buckeye trainer, will describe cases of injuries, special taping and equipment.

The sessions will close Saturday afternoon with the coaches viewing a practice game under actual game conditions. Willaman will put his charges through their paces and try to illustrate the majority of coaching features brought out during the two day clinic.

Minneapolis Looks Like Contender In Association Fight

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 15.—Minneapolis, figured as a champion about to be jarred loose from his American Association baseball throne, today threatened to give its rivals a merry battle for the flag under the leadership of the veteran National league star, Dave Bancroft.

Opening their title defending campaign on the home lot of the Columbus Red Birds, the almost unanimous choice of the experts to win the championship this year, the Millers have handed the circuit its first surprise of the season with two victories in three starts by demonstrating a good punch and all-around baseball ability.

In the final game of the initial series yesterday, the Millers said it with home runs to win, 9 to 4. Harris, Ruble and Mowry hit for the circuit to decide the game while Benton and Van Gilder held the Red Birds in check. Van Gilder was especially impressive, holding Columbus hitless over two innings.

A five-hit pitching performance by Les Munns and hits by Clyde Beck gave St. Paul a six to 3 victory over Toledo and the series two games to one. Except for faulty fielding by Koster and Nachand, whose bobble helped the hens to their runs, Munns would have had a shutout. The Hens were forced to revamp their lineup when Manager and Catcher Steve O'Neil split a finger and joined Catcher Butch Henline on the crippled list.

One of the smallest crowds in all American Association history, 187 fans, saw Louisville defeat Kansas City, 7 to 1, yesterday for its first victory of the season.

Milwaukee and Indianapolis were rained out at the Hoosier capital.

New series opened today with Minneapolis at Toledo, St. Paul at Columbus, Kansas City at Indianapolis and Milwaukee at Louisville.

Popular Stars in Pictures Coming This Week to State

CLARK GABLE and HELEN HAYES in "THE WHITE SISTER"

THREE excellent and late picture releases are scheduled at the State theater for the coming week. Each boasts a cast headed by some of the brightest of film stars. Such stars as Helen Hayes, Clark Gable, Kay Francis, Richard Dix, George Brent, Monroe Owsley and a host of others are to be seen in important roles.

Hayes and Gable Star
"The White Sister", which, when starred in by Ronald Coleman and Lillian Gish, proved one of the most popular of all silent films now comes to the fore as a talkie with two of the screen's most prominent players—Helen Hayes and Clark Gable as its stars.

The State theater is one of the first picture houses in the state to show the film. It will play three days.

"The White Sister", termed the most stirring and poignant love story of all fiction should be an ideal setting for the talents of the tiny actress who has so touched the hearts of all movie lovers and the heart-dashing Gable who in the role of the Italian soldier should be at his best.

Kay Francis in New Film
Wednesday and Thursday Kay Francis and George Brent will play leading roles in "The Keyhole", a new film. Glenda Farrell, last seen here in "The Wax Museum", Monroe Owsley, Helen Ware and Allen Jenkins also play prominent parts.

This story is a spicy and snappy and leads the spectator through a series of madcap adventures from New York to Havana. It is based on the story "Adventures" by Alice Miller.

"The Great Jasper" starring Richard Dix and classed as one of the outstanding films of the year comes to the theater Friday and Saturday. With Dix is Edna May Oliver, Florence Eldridge, Mrs. Frederic March and the German newcomer to the American screen, Vera Engels.

A brand new characterization for Dix is the gay, irresponsible and utterly irresistible lover who becomes known as "the great Jasper."

Today's Features
Today's attraction at the State is Joan Blondell's first starring vehicle, "Broadway Bad" while John Wayne is featured in "The Telegraph Trail" at the Grand today and Sunday.

Another exciting chapter of "The Last of the Mohicans" will also be shown at the Grand.

Named by Donahy
In 1926 Adams was appointed by Governor Donahy to serve the unexpired term of Judge Alexander Hadden of probate court. He was opposed at the following election by Common Pleas Judge George P. Baer, a jurist of long experience, but won easily. He had served in the court ever since.

For some months prior to his reelection to the probate bench in the fall of 1932 he was absent from his court and chambers frequently due to failing health. As his strength ebbed he was forced to delegate more work to his subordinates.

Rest Falls, Takes Another
Just a week after he started his new term in 1933, the judge left for Florida on the advice of his physician in an attempt to regain his health. He remained away for two months, returned and then announced he would be forced to take another 60-day leave of absence.
